

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons and for the reasons set forth in appellants' brief of October 12, 1960, appellants pray that the Court find that these appellants have the requisite standing or capacity to appeal the Commission's final order herein, or in the alternative that the Court reverse and remand forthwith for such a finding or for proceedings which will lead to such a finding; that the Court below be ordered to hear and determine appellants' motion for summary judgment on the merits with expedition; and that appellants recover their costs of this appeal, but that in any event, because of the nature and financial circumstances of these appellants and the public interest involved, that appellees bear their own costs; and for such other and further relief as the Court shall consider proper and reasonable.

Dated this 19th day of November, 1960.
